MOUNTAIN SCENERY .- Mountain scenery beyond all other forms and aspects of na ture, generates strong local attachment. The most intense love of country has always been found in dwellers among the hills. No homes have been fought for with such earnest, sacrificing patriotism as wild and even barren rocky fastnesses. Mountaineers can be destroyed in their fromes more easily than they can be driven from their homes; and none feel the hardship of exile and expatriation so keenly as they. Summer tourists are bound by the same law of attraction. On other routes of travel they seek the zest of novelty, and are perpetually exploring regions previous ly mavisited ; but the mountain journey or sejourn invites their return for season af ter season, and the same steps are retraced. the same haunts revisited, with an interest a fascination, and a joy that never reach their climax. This is due in part we doubt not to merely physical experiences. The pare thin bracing air of elevated regions is initialed with a conscious luxury, which sublum accompanies the process of breathing on the plain or by the seashore. The sum of vitality is doubled, and the life of two tavs seems condensed into one. The undulating paths, the alternate ascent and des went, tring in turn all the muscles employed in becomotion into exercise, and give them in turn relief and relaxation, so that not only does the enthusiastic pedestrian find his capacity enhanced, but, as we have learned by repeated trial, the horse, in whose case the journey is a mere affair of nrancle, can measure day by day a greater districe, and for a greater number of suc-

But the transcendent charm of mountain scellery is its unceasing novelty. On no two days, for no two successive hours, is the change as often, and are as incapable of repenting, themselves as the groups of glitter-ing objects in the kaleidoscope. The caps, wreaths, and fillets of azure mists, the shad ows of moring clouls, the prismatic hues plant clothe barren crags with a transfiguring glory at sunset, the passage of dense col massed rapor among the hills and over the valleys, are at every moment as fresh a joy to the beholder as if the like had never from seen before. ARCHBISHOP HUGHES ON THE KITCH-EN.—Archbishop Hughes, attending recently the exhibition of an Academy of Young Ladies, made there an address, in the course of which he said:
Although it is of the utmost importance, young ladies, that you should have a good education, should be accomplished, cultivated, graceful and refined, yet there are other things that cannot be lost sight of. Refore another year rolls around I propose to arrange with the Sisters for a new branch of study in the Academy. That branch of study is what the French call the science of cuisine. It is the science of beeping hou e and that, we all know, commences with the kitchen. Every young lady, I don't care if she be a queen's daughter, ought to understand that department of life. Even though she may be able to hire her cook, yet she should understand it herself, for it may happen we me day that the cook will dismiss her. [Great laughter.] What a predicament she would be in then. Well, what I was going to say was, that the Sisters should ment at home, nor strive to seek it else arrange it so that all the girls over thir- where. And not alone to the higher class teen years of age should be enabled to spend a portion of the time in the kitchen, and become acquainted with cooking and househave the theory, and some practice too. Another point, and I will close. At the end of another year, if living, and my purse medal of not less than $50 in value, to the young lady who will write the best essay, not exceeding five pages in length, upon this great new science I have spokeen of. A Prison Snower Bath Punishment.—A Philadelphia reporter having thoroughly overhauled the Moyamensing Prison, gives the following account of the shower bath mode of punishing criminals:

In a cell at the eastern end of the coridor appropriated for females, stood some-thing like a wooden chimney, vertically against the wall. Closer inspection revealed a door in its front, with staple and padlock. This being thrown open, an apartment just large enough to contain a human body was revealed, with one of the round perforated bath eisterns in the top. The door and sides are hollow and stuffed with woollen, to prevent screams from being heard.

When any prisoner becomes ungovernable, he is escorted to this cell. The physician, the nurse and the superintendent stand by. The malefactor is forced into dying. Will you act as witness in his the apartment, the door closed upon him. place?" the t ple secured with a heavy padlock. Then, in the darkness and stifling air, the unhappy rin mil feels the rush of the descending water. It comes in a torrent upon his uncovered head, seems to be beating upon his brain. In vain does he seek to avoid the draught. He cannot bend in the narrow aperture. He cannot turn His breath grows short. Every nerve is unstrung. His heart beats agonizingly. He screams, but the walls are deaf, and him, and makes him a sign to approach. there is no reply. He is suffocating-dying. And when sense is swimming, and life flickering, the door is opened, the unhappy man removed, and the dying pulses taught to beat again.

Sometimes the crim'n is, when removed, are black in the face: the blood flooding the head. A man in Sing Sing prison letely expired under this punishment. The shower bath at Moyamensing has been used three times in seven years. Its effects are to shock the vervous system and weaken the entire body. One woman was lately put to the bath test. She is known as Jenby Lind, and designated by one of the Wardens as the most abandoned woman in the world. She has been in prison more than one hundred times, chiefly for vagrancy, and is beyond all reformation. She seems at times to be possessed with a demon. On Wedneseav, she leaped upon Mr. Sargeot, the Warden of the Female Department, and tore his mouth in a most savage manner. The assault was entirely unprovoked. She is said to be very decep tive. She was placed in the showerbath for an exhibition of heinous wickedness and at the end of ten minutes punishment asked if she would behave. She said with an oath she would not, and demanded to be punished again.

The bath was again applied; but she was still incorrigible. When brought forth again, she was almost lifeless, and but for the application of promptrestoratives would have been no longer a trouble to the author-

How to KEEP MEN AT HOME .-There would be fewer wretched marriages, fewer dissipated, degraded men, if women were taught to feel the angel duty which devolves upon them, to keep the wandering steps of those who are tempted so much more than they, in the paths of virtue and peace-to make them feel that in that at home there is order and repose—that their eyes look brighter when they come—that the smile of welcome is ever ready to receive them, the books are ever ready to be laid aside to minister to the husband's pleasure; they would find amusewhere. And not alone to the higher class of society should this be taught-it should be a lesson instilled into the minds of all, high and low, rich and poor. Fewer heartkeeping. Here will be a new bureau of education. [Laughter.] We shall then stand waiting at the doors of public houses, to lead the unsteady steps of drunken husbands home, if that home had offered a room as cheerful, a fire as bright, a welcome as is long enough, I am going to give a gold ready and cordial, as at the tap-room they frequent. Duty has seldom so strong a hold on man as woman; they cannot and will not for duty's sake remain in a dull, tedious, or ill-managed, quarrel ome home, but leave it to find elsewhere the comfort and amusement which fail them there; and, when riot and revelry have done their work, the wives and sisters, who have done so little to make them otherwise, are pitied for bad husbands and brothers.

AN UNEXPROTED LEGACE - An editor of small theatrical journal has just received legacy in a singular fashior. He had been to pay a visit to an actress who lives in the third story of a house in Rude de Richelieu. As he was descending the staircase a door opened, and a man in a black dress came out hastily and ran against the journalist.

"l'arcion, monsieur," he said and was about to go on, but suddenly stopping he looked at the young man, added, "Monsius have you half an hour to lose?"
